

Har Ki Dun Trek

7 DAYS / 6 NIGHTS · EX-DEHRADUN · THE VALLEY OF THE GODS

Har Ki Dun, the "valley of the gods", is a cradle-shaped glacial valley steeped in Mahabharata legend. The trail follows the Supin river through ancient timber-and-stone villages, dense forests and wide meadows, with Swargarohini towering at the head of the valley. It is a moderate, deeply scenic trek that rewards trekkers who want culture and wilderness, not just a summit.

Difficulty & safety — the honest bit

Har Ki Dun is graded Moderate. There is no technical climbing, but the days are long (5–7 hr) and the trek covers ~47 km over a week at altitudes up to ~3,566 m, where mild AMS is possible. A few weeks of cardio and some practice walks beforehand make it far more enjoyable. In winter (Dec–Mar) expect snow and sub-zero nights. Our guides carry oxygen and a pulse oximeter, keep groups small, and prioritise your safety over reaching the valley head.
